

SageCircle's Expertise on ARchitect™

Maximize ARchitect's Business Value

How can you get your AR team to use ARinsight's ARchitect to its fullest?

Training and advice beyond describing keystrokes

ARinsights' ARchitect Analyst Relationship Management (ARM) application is a powerful tool for AR, but only if the team uses it effectively. SageCircle's ARchitect training and advice goes beyond simply describing which keystrokes or mouse clicks to use for a function, but addresses how to make ARchitect an integrated and valuable part of an AR professional's daily work routine.

Sometimes it's not the software

During our training sessions, we often encounter situations where the barrier to effective usage of ARchitect is not a lack of skills with the ARM, but a lack of commonly agreed upon AR best practices. In these cases, our expertise as AR practitioners complements our expertise as ARchitect users to provide our clients with the solutions they need. We have suggestions and templates you can use to establish team standards, guides to promote easy and consistent entries, and suggested common reports to promote use.

Unmatched Real World Experience

SageCircle strategists have practical, every day experience with ARchitect gained from deploying and managing the largest global implementation of the application for over three years. In addition to the management aspect, we were power users of the software having learned how to get the most out of the software with the minimal amount of work. SageCircle strategists have also been power clients, working closely with ARinsights' developers suggesting new approaches and testing new releases.

SageCircle ARchitect Services

SageCircle's SageContent™, training, and advisory give AR teams the knowledge, skills and best practices needed to ensure that ARchitect becomes an integral part of the team's infrastructure. The goal is to help clients drive efficiency and effectiveness by leveraging the power of this strong ARM.
